

MIDDLE WEST PILGRIMAGE TO HARVEST FIELDS NOW UNDERWAY

Thousands of Workers to Invade Grain Belts, Is Estimate of Bureau

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 4.—The rush to the harvest fields of the middle west—that annual pilgrimage of as widely assorted bit of humanity as the army of peace furnishes—is on.

Within a few days the sunlit belts of Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas and Dakota will be pregnant with the life of the harvest—the whirling of the cutters and the binders, the glittering sweep of the scythe and the raucous voices of the thousands of workers who will dot the fields like huge coveys of birds, singing as they go.

Horny-handed laborers from a score of states mingled with college men using this method of vacationing to supplement their income in order that they may have another term at school, and even a few "hoboes," who break a rule of idleness to work a few weeks to get a "stake" for another year of idleness.

Estimates Wages
According to George E. Tucker, field director of the United States farm labor bureau here, the clearing house through which the harvest army passes, at least 7500 outside hands will be in the central Oklahoma when the wheat harvest starts there about June 10. Wages will be from $3 to $4 a day for shockers and $5 to $6 a day for stackers, in addition to boarding and lodging. Cutting in the central and northwestern Oklahoma will start between June 15 and 20.

In the Panhandle district of Texas, according to Mr. Tucker, more than 6000 harvest hands will be needed when the cutting of the gleaming grains begins June 15. The wage in this section will be $4 a day, in addition to board and lodging.

Workers Arriving
The farm bureau here these days is a hive of activity. Men pouring in on every train go here for information and direction concerning labor needs, cutting dates and wages in the various states. Already the vanguard is in the field. Daily additional hands are trickling into the various areas. Within the next few days, according to Mr. Tucker, the grand rush will be on, and every westbound train will carry its quota of men to man the fields of yellow grain.

Mrs. A. W. Tower, Formerly President of Tuesday Club, Is Found Dead in Her Home

DEATH this morning claimed Mrs. Alphonso W. Tower, 35 years of age, a resident of 214 East Park avenue, Glendale, and one of the most beloved members of local club and church circles. A sudden heart attack while she was happily at work in the kitchen of her home was given as cause of death by Dr. David A. Barker, who was hastily summoned by A. W. Sheon, a laundry driver, who found the prostrate body on the floor shortly before noon today.

Her husband, A. W. Tower, a member of the commercial printing firm of Tower-Lee Company, Los Angeles, was called home, where he is grief-stricken by the sudden shock. He is a member of the Glendale Union High School board.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Tower leaves a daughter, Ruth, aged 10, and her aged father, the Rev. William B. Collins and her step-mother. The latter live at 208 East Park avenue. Hundreds of friends also will be saddened to hear of the passing to the great beyond of a woman who had just reached the fullness of life's enjoyment.

CHINESE MOB SAFETY ACT WARS WITH JAPANESE IS HELD TO BE VALID

International Complication May Result From Clash At Treaty Port

PEKING, June 4.—The Chinese government may be faced with another international complication as a result of the attack of Japanese guards at the treaty port of Changsha by a mob. The Japanese guards are reported to have fired on the mob in self-defense when hard pressed. Changsha has long been a seat of anti-foreign feeling and the attack on the Japanese bluejackets is believed here to be a result of anti-foreign propaganda and the boycott movement against the Japanese.

SEEK BIG SUM TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION IN NATION

Congress Will Be Asked for $25,000,000 to Assist In Dry Campaign

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service
WASHINGTON, June 4.—Repeal of the New York state enforcement law, with the possibility existing that a few other states may follow New York's example, is going to prove costly to the federal government, it was admitted today by officials who have closely studied the prohibition enforcement situation since Governor Smith signed the repeal.

Instead of approximately $9,000,000 appropriated for the enforcement of prohibition during the present year, prospects are today that at least $25,000,000 will be asked of congress to keep the country dry next year. Prohibition enforcement officials, at any rate, are making their preliminary estimates on that basis.

Big Staff Increase
The additional millions will be required to pay for a greatly increased staff of federal agents and for a "general broadening out" of the whole enforcement division of the government, officials said.

New York alone will require a tremendous increase in enforcement personnel. While the Mul-len-Gage law has been effective, the mobile force of agents on duty in New York state has ranged around 200. Now that the co-operation of state and city officers has, in a large measure, been withdrawn, this force will have to be multiplied many times.

Even then, it was admitted, strict enforcement in New York is going to be a dubious proposition.

Harding Will Act
Theoretically, at least, 20,000 enforcement agents have been lost through the repeal of the Mul-len-Gage law, counting each policeman an enforcement agent and the federal government cannot hope to throw an army of that size into New York in replacement.

The cost of enforcing prohibition to the federal government is one of the matters which President Harding will call to the attention of the governors of states in their conference here next week. He will inform the governors that the maximum of state and city aid is necessary if federal taxes are to be kept down.

President Harding wants to see every policeman and every official an active enforcement agent and he will make this emphatic to the governors.

The request of the prohibition bureau for greatly increased funds will precipitate one of the many wet and dry fights in congress which already loom up.

Capital City Turns Into Gigantic Carnival for Benefit of Visitors

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Railroads and motor caravans poured Shriners into the national capital today by the thousands.

Historic Pennsylvania avenue, down which have passed the memorable parades in American history, from the capitol to the White House presented an endless procession of bobbing red fezzes, blaring bands and singing Shriners from the sixty-one special trains that arrived during the day.

Fifty thousand of the visitors reached Washington in time to spend the week end, but today saw the great movement into the capital, the climax of which will be reached early tomorrow when it is estimated that 300,000 Shriners and their friends will fill the city.

Opens Tomorrow

The convention formally opens tomorrow with a three-day program of exercises and entertainments. James S. McCandless, imperial potentate, arrived Sunday from San Francisco and was given a great ovation from the thousands who packed themselves around Union station.

Washington has been turned into one gigantic carnival town for the big convention. Pennsylvania avenue itself has been barred to traffic. Tomorrow, the opening day of the convention, Pennsylvania avenue will witness its greatest parade, when more than 300,000 will take part in a gigantic procession from the capitol to the White House, where President Harding will review it. A governmental holiday has been declared and all departments will be closed.

Serenade President

The Ben Ali Temple of Sacramento, Calif., was the first of the bands to serenade the president and Mrs. Harding. The westerners "boomed" their way into the White House executive offices for the concert.

Let this afternoon the president will receive on behalf of the government the zero milestone monument, presented by the Lee Highway association. Located in the president's park in the rear of the White House, this monument will be the standard of lineal measurement on all highways radiating from the capital city.

The dedication, with elaborate ceremonies, will be held in connection with the arrival here of the Shrine motor caravan from California and the west, which has been on a trans-continental tour for more than two weeks.

RUSSIA, JAPAN WIDOW SAYS GERMANY IN ALLIANCE? 14 MILLIONS DISAPPEAR

Preliminary Conference to Take Place; Predict Trade Agreement

By DUKE N. PARRY
For International News Service
TOKIO, June 4.—A new triple alliance of Russia, Japan and Germany is regarded by political observers here as one of the possible eventual outcomes of the preliminary official conference to which the Japanese cabinet will invite Commissioner Joffe, representing the Russian soviet government following its session tomorrow.

The Hocht, a well-informed Japanese paper on opinion within the official circle, discussing the political significance of this supposed economic move, suggests that far-seeing Japanese leaders are building politically for the future.

Victory for Goto
The decision of the Japanese cabinet to confer with Joffe may be regarded as a great victory for the campaign conducted by Baron Goto, former mayor of Tokio who resigned that office in order to urge an economic conference and agreement with soviet Russia.

Goto, many times mentioned in connection with the premiership, through forcing the cabinet to enter into Russian negotiations has placed himself in a strong position politically. He had the backing of various Japanese chambers of commerce and business interests in endeavoring to bring about a trade agreement with Russia.

HOME, ROADS ARE GREAT NEED IN U. S. PRESIDENT DECLARES

Harding, in Two Brief Talks Today, Gives Views on Outstanding Needs

By KENNETH W. CLARK
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Better homes and better roads are two of the outstanding needs in American life, President Harding declared here this afternoon in two brief addresses before audiences made up of thousands of visitors who fill Washington for the Shrine convention.

In one of the addresses, the president accepted in behalf of the government the Zero milestone commemorating the Lee highway; in the other he dedicated the model home, erected in four weeks in connection with the "better homes week" campaign.

For Better Roads

As it was fitting for the golden milestone of Rome to be erected in the Roman forum, the center of that ancient civilization's greatness, "so it is appropriate, too, that our golden milestone be placed here in our national capital, the spiritual and institutional center of the nation."

From it will diverge, to it will converge, the ceaseless tides whose movements will always keep our far-flung population in that close intimacy of thought and interest, and aim, which is so necessary to the maintenance of unity and nationality," the president asserted.

"Better roads," continued the president, "will do much to remove the disadvantages of remoteness and isolation which have ever been the greatest drawbacks of life in the country."

"The movement for better homes is a movement for a better mankind. We have too often overlooked the fact that after all the greatest single industry in America is in the management of the American home where 20,000,000 women toil every day of the year; 18,000,000 of these women doing their own work without help."

None Can Compare
"There is no other activity or industry comparable to this in the numbers employed, the effort devoted to it, or the importance of its products; nor in the significance of the spiritual forces that envelop it."

As the unfettering of political restrictions throughout the world's history has lifted mankind from serfdom, so will better homes, said the president.

Standing in the shadow of the Washington monument and the White House, Mr. Harding, accompanied by Mrs. Harding and members of his cabinet, appealed that America's program for grid-ironing the nation with highways go ahead unhampered.

"Our country has been more dependent upon the development of internal highways than any other in all history, because our vast continental area is so ill-supplied with those arms of the sea, which have always kept the countries of western Europe in close contact with that great universal and common high road, the open ocean."

Mr. Harding declared that while great strides have been made in annihilating the vast space of this country, much remains to be done.

That's All
Six Round Fight Enough
Old Man Money Is King
Go Chase Your Conscience
Heavy Clothing Cool Nights
By Gil A. Cowan

THE California legislature had before it for consideration a constitutional amendment permitting ten-round prize fights, otherwise known as boxing exhibitions. There was finally approved a measure which, when finally ratified, will give six-round fights a chance.

And six rounds are sufficient. Dempsey and Knute will meet on Jess Willard in the fourth round—if not in the first. Last Saturday Cripplé hit Kilbane on the jaw in a little show at New York and the champ "went down like a stricken bull," according to the news accounts, in the sixth round.

Six-round fights ought to be sufficient. Four rounds satisfy the writer; provided the boys are clever. It is claimed, however, that clever fighters want more time in which to dance around. So we say six rounds with the slaughter house tactics of Dempsey and Cripplé.

Many a good man has taken an awful licking, if you will excuse the language, for a few dollars. But song writers, authors of books, public speakers and picture painters have done a lot more for less. All of them might have made more in some other calling, yet the love of the work kept them in meagre circumstances and made them the victims of this day buyers.

In this day and age a man has the opportunity of getting more for his work than ever before, provided he can find someone who will finance him in making the effort. That is why many fellows marry rich wives, perhaps. There is something about marketing your services, however, in any manner at all which is revolting.

For instance, a song writer, or scenario editor, or newspaper reporter must turn out copy as the cashier directs. It is inconceivable, yet a fact, that the counting rooms in this country control the destinies of great newspapers, films, fights, baseball and everything else.

The other evening a business man asked if "our conscience was not a guide in that which we write?" Truthfully, it is to the extent that our conscience does not interfere with what we consider more important considerations. In other words, mental reservations must be made by anyone in business.

There are a lot of folks who do not believe this, but they are only fooling themselves. To demonstrate how easily one may become hypnotized in business, shop around at the various motorcar agencies.

Each and every one of the salesmen and dealers believe their machine to be the best, but they maintain such mental reservations that if they lose any particular line they may sell another car with equal assurance that it is better than the first.

An old fable calls it a case of "sour grapes." A fellow filled with gin fizzes told the writer one reason for not taking a drink was due to our desire not to see anyone else have a good time. So around in a circle we go, chasing our conscience—or is our conscience chasing us—like the bear after the hunter.

It is seldom we find a fellow who turns around and meets his conscience in a head-on collision and says and does what he thinks is right. He cannot afford to do so. So he doesn't.

There are sufficient sermons in today's paper for the readers so we will talk about the weather—which so far has been beautiful. An old resident suggests that people who do not wish to catch summer colds, or have their children catch them, change into heavier clothing each evening as the sun goes down.

Not such a bad idea—and take an overcoat along if you are going motoring out in the hills. It will not come amiss.

The tables were arranged beneath the old pepper trees that shade the lawn. Table decorations were golden coccinellids and Shasta roses. Dainty Cecil Brunner rosebuds marked each place. Potted plants, ferns and palms were placed effectively, giving an additional touch of beauty to the charming surroundings.

Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hammond of Los Angeles; Mrs. Della Hammond and sons, Harvey, Carl and Roland Hammond of Hyde Park, Los Angeles; Miss Margaret Larsen of Inglewood; Ross Horrisberger of Whittall, Mich., a nephew who has been her guest for the winter; Mrs. Della Otis and Mrs. Frank Green of Syracuse, Ind., house guests of Mrs. Cunningham; Mrs. Charles Potter and daughter, Elizabeth, of Long Beach.

BUYS 100 ACRES OF CANYON LAND

Plans to Develop Resort on Site Beautified by Trees and Stream

Mark Collins has returned from his trip to Orange Canyon near the Modjeska ranch. While there Mr. Collins purchased 100 acres of canyon land, with a stream running through it, trees and a 6-room cabin. There are trout in the stream and Mr. Collins says it will be an ideal spot for a resort and will sell it for that purpose. The oak by the cabin has a spread of 100 feet.

The Country Fair held on Saturday by the church workers was a distinct success from every standpoint. Prettily decorated booths were presided over by Mesdames Angier, Cox and Toschke at the cake and pie booth; punch in charge of Mr. Biggs and Mrs. Hieman; quill pens and small mirrors, donated by the Montrose State bank, were given away at this booth as favors. Mrs. Burt and Mrs. Stein had charge of the salad booth and Mrs. Benson and Mrs. Cleaver, sandwiches. The ice-cream freezer was in charge of Bob Kelso. The hot dog sandwich stand was cared for by Mr. Heman. Mrs. Poy and Mrs. Hansen looked after the interests of the fishers at the pond, and many were the hearty laughs produced by the queer fish landed by the sporting Isaac Waltons.

The grocery table was presided over by Mr. Cox, the goods thereon being donated by the local merchants, Mr. Anderson, Mrs. Woolley and M. Bowles. Small cakes were donated by Montrose tea room. La Cresenta Pharmacy also donated articles for the pond.

The singing, led by Francis Henry of Glendale, accompanied by Miss Marguerite Hauber of La Cresenta, was a go from the start. Mr. Henry is well liked here and we appreciate his services which he so willingly gives.

VETERANS' CAMP
AT SANTA MONICA

Local Patriotic Societies to Have Headquarters at Annual Gathering

Glendale patriotic societies will have headquarters at the annual Southern California Veterans' encampment, to be held in Santa Monica, opening June 12.

Commander T. M. Barrett of N. P. Banks post, G. A. R., this city, was in the beach town Saturday, arranging for the tent at Camp Heffelfinger.

All patriotic societies and members thereof are invited to join in camping out for a week on the Santa Monica Palisades, where the new veterans' camp will be located, he stated.

In years past the encampment has been held at Huntington Beach, but the oil fields have encroached on the camp site. This accounts for the change to Santa Monica.

Several thousand veterans and their families each year hold this get-together, including the G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, W. R. C., Spanish War Veterans, and now a bid is being made World War Veterans to gather together for a week's vacation featured by patriotic programs.

The proximity of the camp to the Soldiers' Home at Sawtelle will add to the attendance this year, it is believed. Santa Monica is making things comfortable for the crowd, according to Commander Barrett, and he hopes a goodly delegation of Glendale families will be represented.

Ancient Feud Flames
At Dance; Two Slain

DURANGO, Colo., June 2.—John Henderson and Harry Wiltzey are dead here today and several others are suffering from minor bruises following a battle that raged in the little mountain town of Pleasant View, southwest of this city, for nearly an hour, early this morning. The outbreak occurred at a dance when charges were made that parts of Wiltzey's automobile had been stolen.

A feud has existed for many years between the Hendersons and Wiltzey families and, after a battle with stones and other missiles, John Henderson and Harry Wiltzey drew revolvers and engaged in a duel that ended in both being shot to death.

Rev. W. E. Smith, pastor of the Sunland Baptist church, announces that the prospects are good for the breaking of ground about July 1 for the new church building to be erected there. Approximately $6000 is available for building operations and as the entire amount is estimated at only $8,000, the start should not be long delayed.

From Sunland he will go to Redlands where his brother Jesse is attending the Redlands University, to be there for the graduation of this year's class, of which Jesse Smith is a member.

After graduating Jesse Smith will spend two weeks at Sunland with his father and the rest of his vacation will be spent in Garden Grove. From there he will go to Louisville, Kentucky, where he will enter the Louisville Seminary and specialize in young people's work.

PASTOR PARMELE
TELLS OF ANGELS

Not Spirits of Departed
Human Beings, Asserts
Adventist Speaker

"Angels, Good and Bad" was the subject of Pastor R. W. Parmele's discourse at the Seventh-day Adventist church last night. The pastor does not believe that angels are the spirits of departed human beings, but that they are a part of the creation of God. He said in part:

"That angels are not the spirits of dead people is evident from the fact that God placed one at the entrance of the Garden of Eden to 'keep the way of the tree of life,' before anyone had died. It is also evident that angels formed the heavenly choir at the ceremony of laying the corner stone of this earth in the work of creation, as is stated in Job 38:4 to 7. Moreover it would be possible to enumerate all of the people who have died,—they would not reach beyond our powers of calculation. If there had always been as many people on the earth as there are at present, and we should count a generation at only thirty years, we could calculate the number. But Paul says in Hebrews 13:22, that the angels are innumerable. Speaking of them, as he saw them in vision, Daniel says in chapter 7, verse 10, that there were 'thousand thousands, and ten thousand times ten thousand.' Can any one figure that out?"

Plan of Salvation

"When our Saviour offered himself as a sacrifice for man, the angels desired a part. Peter in his first epistle, chapter 1, verse 12, tells us of the interest of the angels in the plan of salvation. The Father gave them a part to act, as stated by the apostle Paul in Hebrews 1:14,—to minister to those who shall be heirs of salvation. It is evident from the study of the scriptures that each individual has an attending angel, who is continually striving an influence for good upon his heart. The angel is also making a record of the life. This fact is indicated in the Saviour's caution against despising a little one, as stated in Matt. 18:10. When Peter returned from prison to the praying disciples, after his miraculous deliverance, they could not believe at first that it was he, but insisted that it must be 'his angel.' Acts 12:15. And the Psalmist gives us the blessed assurance that the angels are 'round about them that fear God,' Psal. 34:7. But the wicked are cautioned not to try to excuse their sins, for the angel makes a faithful record of their acts. Eccl. 5:6.

Show True Nature

"But there are not only good angels. Some of them sinned, and were cast out of heaven, 2 Peter 2:4. Dr. Parkhurst tells us that the original word here rendered 'hell' is 'the darkness surrounding the material universe.' This being true, we would understand that they were cast down, while yet the earth was enveloped in darkness, or before the work of creation began. In Rev. 12:9 we learn the name of the leader of the company of fallen angels.

"God did not immediately destroy them, but left them to show their true nature, that there would be no sympathizers when finally they should be destroyed. We read the cause of the fall of Satan in Ezekiel 28:13 to 17, and in Isaiah 14:12 to 14. He desired to be exalted 'like the Most High.' And when man came forth from the hand of his Creator, Satan sought immediately to obtain dominion over him. And since that first effort he has continued, with unceasing activity, his efforts to entrap men. (1 Peter 5:8.)

"The same power exercised by holy angels when God commanded angels when he permits, in Job's time, we find him destroying property, stirring men up to robbery, bringing down fire, and smiting the servant of God with affliction,—Job 1 and 2. Our only safety is in having on the 'whole armor of God.' 'For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, Eph. 6:10 to 18.

"Jesus met him, and won in the struggle. He tried his most severe temptations upon the Son of God, Luke 4. Then he caused him to be slain and laid in the tomb, but Jesus conquered in it all, Rev. 1:18, and triumphed over the devil, Col. 1:15. Now Satan knows his time is short, and so the conflict becomes sharper and sharper with each passing year, Rev. 12:12. But in Jesus we have the conqueror, and the power to conquer, Luke 10:18, 19.

"His time is short. Soon the retribution will come, and then will be fulfilled the words of Ezekiel in Chapter 28: verses 18 and 19, and he shall never be any more. And affliction shall not rise up the second time. Nahum 1:9 to 12."

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"The Last Moment," the Parer Read production now showing at the Glendale Theatre, presents one of the most unusual stories that has come to the screen this year.

The lead is played by Louis Volheim, who played to such advantage the title role of Eugene O'Neill's "Hairy Ape." Doris Kenyon, equally well known to roadway playgoers, is also seen in a charming role, in this unique film.

The picture was made by Mr. Read from an original story by Jack Boyle, the popular writer whose stories appear in Cosmopolitan, Red Book and other high class magazines.

The particular thrill of the piece is furnished by a mysterious and dreadful "Thing" that makes its appearance aboard an evil schooner.

MEN ARE SUCH FOOLS!

To think that when a woman neglects her beauty she is forgetting her duty to herself and HIM.

It may be just mistaken economy on her part. A sacrifice of attention to herself that she may HELP him.

But—few women get that credit. And are hurt by criticism and neglect.

MONTROSE TEN ACRES WILL BE SUBDIVIDED

Collins Heights Now Being Developed for Sale to Homeseekers

Mr. Collins, of Collins & Tillinghast, realtors, announces that the property known as "Collins Heights," located on Ocean View avenue, bounded on the north by Michigan avenue and on the south by Del Mar avenue, is to be developed and improved as a high class residential district.

From one to two thousand dollars will be spent in leveling the property. The plans call for a paved road, with curbs, circling the knolls on the southern part of the tract. The tract comprises ten acres and has been reserved for this purpose.

Mr. Collins plans to build ten or fifteen houses on the property, modern in all respects, to sell for $10,000. Water is already on the property.

This tract is considerably higher than the surrounding land and is an ideal site for the homeseeker who desires an inspiring view. An unlimited view of the mountains on one side and the valley on the other spreads out before the eyes.

This tract of ten acres has been reserved for this purpose out of the original Montrose township. Collins & Tillinghast bought half of Montrose township less than two years ago and the development has been both speedy and substantial.

Helped Home Seekers
The rapid development and building of Montrose is attributed to the inducements offered by the firm. The lots were sold for $25 down and convenient payments arranged for the balance. Upon payment of the $25 a water meter was installed by the subdividers, which cost them $20, and an order issued on the lumber company for the material necessary for the buyer to erect his house. These items were added to the contract and the buyer handled them in convenient payments.

With these inducements the property sold rapidly. One-half mile of Honolulu avenue lots, both sides of the avenue, were sold for $400 on the terms of $10 down and $10 per month. These lots are now commanding from $1500 to $2500. Corner lots were sold for $1200 and are now valued at $5500 and up.

One of the subdivisions just recently placed on the market by Collins & Tillinghast is also meeting with success. It is located at the end of Briggs avenue and of 105 lots placed on the market five months ago, but nine remain unsold and there are twenty-five houses already built on the tract.

P. B. Watkins, son-in-law to Mr. Collins, has charge of the tract as a partner.

Open Lumber Yard
One of the first enterprises undertaken by this firm in this field was the establishing of a lumber yard at Montrose. From this yard they supplied the building material for their buyers on extremely attractive terms. The yard was later sold to and is now operated by Johnson & Anawalt Company, who also have a yard at Tujunga.

The latest purchase by this firm is a canyon tract in Orange county, located near the Orange county park, known as Silverade canyon. This tract is three-quarters of a mile long and has a trout stream running through the center of it and is covered with oak and sycamore trees. There is one beautiful residence on the property. No definite plans have been made for the development of this property as yet.

Collins & Tillinghast moved their office from Los Angeles street and Honolulu avenue about two months ago to Mr. Collins' home at 172 East Prospect avenue, La Crescenta.

Place; Tujunga Second,
Burbank Third

Troop No. 2, Glendale, Boy Scouts of America, took first place in the annual outdoor contest and field day held Saturday afternoon, June 2, on the John Muir school athletic field. The total points piled up by Troop 2 was 125.

Troop No. 1, Tujunga, won second place by a very low margin from Troop No. 2, Burbank. The final score was Tujunga 75 points and Burbank 70 points. The field day was held under the auspices of the Verdugo Hills District Scout Council. The most pleasing thing about the whole contest in the eyes of Roy L. Kent was the fact that there was no "crabbing" on the part of the scouts or leaders. Every decision made by the judges was accepted in true sporting style.

According to Scout Executive Harold Benner, the success of the whole meet was due to the efficient judges and the willingness of the scouts and leaders to accept their judgment without question. Coach A. C. Osborn of the Burbank High school acted in the capacity of supervisor of judges. Walter Wescott of Eagle and Jamboree Scout fame was the technical judge. R. Ernest Tucker, executive secretary Glendale Community Service, was also one of the judges as was Roy L. Kent, treasurer of the local council.

The result of the field meet by event are given in full detail as follows:

VAUDEVILLE NETS $1000 AT BENEFIT

Pearl Keller Dancing Pupils
Win High Praise for Artistic Work

The Crippled Children's Guild of the Orthopaedic Hospital-School benefited to the extent of $1000 by the performance staged at the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles, Saturday, May 19, under the direction of Mrs. Pearl Keller Brattain, of Glendale, proprietor of the Pearl S. Keller School of Dancing.

This performance, which was staged and directed by Mrs. Brattain in person, was called "Children's Society Vaudeville" and was made up exclusively of the Pearl Keller school, over 200 boys and girls participating.

As Mrs. Brattain also had full charge of the sale of tickets, she has double reason to feel proud of the splendid success her efforts produced. In making the above announcement that $1000 was netted the Orthopaedic Hospital-School by the performance, Mrs. Brattain extends her heartfelt thanks to the people of Glendale, and to her talented little pupils, for their co-operation in making the affair such an outstanding success.

Since this performance, letters have poured in on Mrs. Brattain from all over southern California, congratulating her and making offers of various sorts. Many of these letters point to the high quality of the work of certain of the little pupils and urge that they take up the vaudeville stage of the motion pictures as a profession.

In Bobby Lehman, "the vest-pocket edition of Julian Eltinge," the Pearl Keller school already has one professional artist of whom to be proud. Bobby, by the way, is back taking an advanced course with Mrs. Brattain, at her North Brand boulevard studio, in preparation for his fall whirl over the Orpheum Circuit, back east.

Paul Bickenbach of 347 Ivy street, Glendale, who is leaving Thursday morning for Freeport, Ill., reports reading an account in the Freeport Standard-Journal of the Glendale Evening News' comment on the filming at Tujunga of the Lincoln-Douglas debate.

Mr. Bickenbach is one of the few living people who was present at that historic event and he recollects with pride of having climbed on the rostrum to the rear of the Great Emancipator while he was delivering the ringing speech which was the first step in saving the union.

Although sixty years in the mercantile business, Mr. Bickenbach believes his age of 73 summers young. He is greatly pleased with Glendale and will return here next winter to reside with relatives.

Newcomer Purchases
Piano in Local Store

Harry Moore, proprietor of Gold Housekeeping Shops at 140 South Brand boulevard, who is moving to Glendale this week, was an exhibitor at the exposition. So was the Shuck Music company. The newcomer saw and purchased an $850 Ludwig Baby Grand piano from them after having been "sold" on the instrument in Los Angeles.

"Why not patronize home stores?" asks Moore. "Too bad more don't do it right along."

FOOTHILL MEETING
A meeting of the Glendale Foothill Improvement Association will be held at the exposition at the Grand View school Tuesday night. The needs of the district will be discussed, according to Mrs. Myrtle Buckman, secretary.

MINOR OPERATIONS
Minor operations were performed upon Dorothy Gardner and Carl Gardner, children of Mr. and Mrs. Karl L. Gardner of 211 East Palmer avenue, this morning at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Battle, 8 to 3

The Glendale Athletic club nine today afternoon for the big end of an 8-to-3 score in a fast game played on the home grounds.

It was the opening contest of the G. A. C. season, and the local boys slipped the old lever right into high gear without any preamble, making the grade from first to home eight times without a struggle.

"A fine time was had by all," especially the base-runners. They knocked the ball so fast and far that walking around the sacks looked like the product of a slow-motion camera.

The local boys scored eight runs, twelve hits and one black eye. The runs were earned, the hits likewise—but the black eye was gratis, given to Jackson of the visitors, when he misjudged a smacking grounder and caught it in the optic.

Sermon Excerpts And News Notes From Local Churches

CHURCHES of Glendale held solemn, impressive services yesterday, attended by large crowds. Pastors preached on varied topics and special music was provided by soloists and choirs. Herewith are presented brief excerpts from sermons and, too, other church news:

Temperance Pledge Is Taken by Methodists

At the Broadway Methodist church, south, yesterday, increased congregations were noticeable at both the Sunday school and preaching service. The topic of the Sunday school lesson, "Temperance," proved of more than ordinary interest, and a strong plea was made for all present to renew their allegiance to the cause at this time. In view of the fact that the rift-raft of some of the larger cities, with the assistance of unscrupulous politicians, are endeavoring to restore the saloons, and undermine the government. As a result every man, woman and child present signed a "Total Abstinence" pledge which is as follows:

"Realization that Strong Drink has long been the greatest enemy to the individual, to civilization, and to the cause of Christianity, we, the undersigned, do hereby pledge ourselves to forever abstain from the use, as a beverage, of all intoxicating liquor of any kind whatsoever; to never engage in its manufacture or sale, and to discourage its use by others."

At the preaching service, A. T. Whitteker, a former evangelistic singer, sang a beautiful solo, and at the close of the sermon the communion service was held. Seven new members were received.

The pastor, Rev. L. J. Millikan, took for his theme "Job's Trials and Triumphs," and in a masterly address portrayed the beautiful life and sterling qualities of Job's character. Job was a real man—not fiction or a phantom; was the wealthiest man in his country; was the greatest man in his nation. As Chief Magistrate, or as we would say today Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, his decisions were so fair and his life so pure, he was honored and revered by all. God said of him that he was the only perfect man.

Also the Devil is real and personal, as God's word says so, and the bible is absolute authority. No matter how trying were his discouragements and afflictions Job remained true to God under all circumstances. Even when reproved and pleaded with by his three closest friends to forsake God and be relieved of his physical tortures, he resented their insults to God by answering them in these words: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in Him"; "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away—blessed be the name of the Lord," and the bold declaration "I know that my Redeemer liveth" etc.

Christian Life Has Need of Sacrifice

Rev. H. C. Mullen at the Pacific Avenue Methodist Church spoke yesterday morning from the text: "He saved others; himself he cannot save." He said: "This is not the irony of fate, but the logic of facts," he declared; "Christ was free to accept or reject the cross. But had he accepted the taunting challenge of his enemies and come down from the cross in order to prove to them that He was indeed the Son of God, it would have meant the defeat of the purpose and plan of God and effected the moral and spiritual disaster of mankind. By remaining on the cross, and thus fulfilling His divine mission, he made possible the redemption of all 'who come unto God by Him'."

"And this seems to be the law of life for man as well as for God. There is no power to rejuvenate, redeem, no vitalizing energy, no virility, save as one is baptized in the fires of this vicarious living and giving and serving."

"The deepest note in the Christian life is the sacrificial note. It has its beginnings and sanction in the heart of God. What Christ could accomplish only at the expense of infinite sacrifice, we may not accomplish by any less giving of ourselves."

God's Co-operation Helps Re-make Life

"People often wonder at what seems to be a laxity upon the part of God," remarked Rev. Philip K. Kemp yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church.

"The truth is, however, that He helps us most when we show some desire for that help. Jesus senses this in the story of Zachaeus, who climbed up in a tree to see Him. Jesus saw him and lighted the spark that remade the life of this sinner."

"Life must be based upon co-operative effort. We do those things best in which we have the greatest interest. Many a man's occupation is against him. He may want to remake his life, but the pressure of circumstance is against him."

"Jesus felt the presence of one needing his help. Man had but to signify the desire for help, and Jesus held out the help needed to remake this life. He came to seek and save those who have lost the vision of life."

"The new life which was opened up for Zachaeus was symbolized by the meal with which he shared with Jesus. It was the pledge of renewed friendship with the Heavenly Father. Such is also the communion service for us today as we gather about the communion rail to pledge our lives to God."

'MORALS' TOPIC AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Rev. C. A. Cole Raps Present Spiritual Slump in Stirring Service

"Morals" was the subject of the sermon last night at the Central Christian church.

"It can scarcely be questioned that there has been a fearful let-down in morals since the beginning of the Great War," commented Rev. C. A. Cole. "Yet, I have it from the best students of history and social reform that, as compared with other times when the world has been so shaken by strife, the let-down is not a safe criterion to judge the trend of human life. Moreover, the slump has not been so bad as following other great upheavals of war."

"My heart is made to stand still, however, when I am brought face to face with situations that are obvious to everyone."

"I am told that a certain tobacco company is securing the names of boys and girls who are graduating from our high schools in order to send each one a graduating present of tempting cigarettes. The relation of the cigarette to the dope evil is so close that most of the dope habit can be traced to the cigarette."

"Latest drug statistics show that one person in every seventy-three in the United States is known to be an addict. Some investigators place the number at four million. Over twenty-five per cent of these form the dope habit before twenty years of age. The Treasury Department of the United States reports that most of the heroin and cocaine addicts are young people. Sixty per cent of the time of the two federal judges of southern California is taken up with cases originating under the narcotic act."

Raps Women Smokers

"Smoking among women is spreading like wild-fire. Some one says, 'Women have as much right to smoke as men.' Listen to an eastern seer, who spoke as though inspired, when he said, 'Where women are honored, the divinities are complacent; where they are despised, it is useless to pray to God.'"

"Modern half-dress, or catering to masculine curiosity and emphasizing the sex ideas, is striking such a staggering blow at morals that only the strongest Christian stability in young men can cause them to keep pure."

"Gambling runs riot, even in our own fair city. Churches, clubs, street fairs, business houses are lending their aid, sometimes innocently, to the craving in humanity to get something for nothing. The giving of automobiles, candy, hams, kewpies, by a drawing, is gambling."

Power of Religion Is Sustaining Remedy

"Is life worth living?" was the inquiry yesterday morning at the First Lutheran church.

"There comes a time in the life of almost every man and woman when this question forces itself upon us," remarked Dr. H. C. Funk. "The mistakes of our lives are many, resulting in discouragement, disappointment and despondency. Alas, too many in the hour of trial, of some great crisis, give heed to the seductive voice of the evil one and hasten their own destruction."

"The joy, the hope and the restraining power of our holy religion is the only remedy. Yet, the Christian life is not an easy one. It never has been easy because the best is always the hardest to achieve."

"The Christian life is worth living because of its lofty ideals. Paul declares: 'I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us.' Again we read: 'Love your enemies and pray for them that persecute you.' He that lives up to this standard of Christian conduct is living a life that will receive abundant reward."

Existence of God Is Rev. Kringle's Theme

"The Existence of God" was the subject of Rev. H. O. Kringle's sermon yesterday morning at the Concordia Lutheran church.

"In the heart of London stands St. Paul's cathedral," he said. "Few men know the name of the great designer of this famous piece of architecture. The architect has chosen a peculiar way to make himself known. There is an inscription in the cathedral which reads: 'If you would know the author, look about you.'"

"Possibly this was a rather proud way for Sir Christopher Wren to introduce himself to a stranger, but, barring the possible motive of conceit, we can find no fault with the inscription. We consider it a legitimate procedure for a workman to make his work speak for him."

"Our manufacturers believe that the best advertisement, which they can obtain for the goods they manufacture, must come from those very goods. This is true in a still more exalted sense with regard to the

Rev. Edmonds Begins On Series of Sermons

At the Glendale Presbyterian church yesterday morning Rev. W. E. Edmonds began a series of "Summer Sabbath Sermons." The topic, "The River of Sanctuary," was based on, the text found in Ezekiel, 47:9.

Reverend Edmonds said that the exact meaning of Ezekiel is of the Holy Spirit, as a river flowing out of the inmost being of the consecrated heart and becoming rivers of blessing to others.

"The prophet speaks of the crystal streams, deepening and broadening as rivers flowing through desert lands, transforming them into gardens of luxurious beauty," he said.

"This river flowed from under the threshold of the sanctuary. It came from the lowest place. So the Holy Spirit works through the lowly heart, one so lost to himself that God may have all the glory. 'The river flowed toward the east. It is a river of the morning, not of the night. It does not represent the old life whose sun is going down, but the new life risen with Christ in resurrection power and is looking out into the everlasting morning.'

"As the prophet went forward the stream is to the ankles, then to the knees, later to the loins, and finally a river wide and deep—waters to swim in—a stream which could not be crossed over. All the prophet can do is to lie upon the 'bosom of the current' and let it carry him. This suggests an available power when we come to the end of our own efforts and resources. Just fall into all the fulness of God. There must be a surrender of our own will. The greatest hindrance in learning to float is the trying to do something. Just trust yourself to it and all the strength of the river is on your side."

"This blessed river brings the Lord. He is better than all His gifts and graces. Having Him we possess all things. He loves to dwell in human temples."

Says Christ's Second Coming Is Assured

"Be ye, therefore, ready" was the text of the sermon by Dr. James F. Winnard yesterday morning at the Tropico Presbyterian church.

"The second coming of Christ is an assured fact," he declared. "As to the time of that event no man knoweth. But by many teachings we are admonished to be ready for Him. One of the greatest signs of the age is the fact that so many lives are in a constant state of unpreparedness for His coming."

"We magnify the unimportant things of life and are busy here and there—always going, but getting nowhere. Busy here and there—but at what? And in magnifying the minor things of life we minimize the greater things and forget to seek first the Kingdom. We are unprepared for His coming because we have neglected to take the steps necessary to make that preparation. Faith in Jesus Christ, confession of our sin and the exercise of the Means of Grace offered to us and neglected by us—leave us without God and without hope."

"To be prepared for Him requires time and thought. It is of no profit to try to figure out the time of His coming, for if we think we know this we know more than God himself gives us credit for, but to be ready when He comes should be our great purpose in life. Get away from the sin of neglect of Divine things and seek Jesus."

Temporal, Eternal Worlds Contrasted

"We live in two worlds: a world that is seen and temporal and a world that is unseen and eternal," remarked Rev. J. C. Livingston yesterday morning at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church.

"We are two kinds of persons: the seen and the unseen. Men say they know us, when they only recognize us by our physical form. To know us, they must know that which is unseen in the life we live alone. We live in groups of persons, in houses, shops, cities and fields. These we see. But back of these is the individual who is the unit of the whole, within whom lives the unseen. Both worlds minister to us. How we should hate to live in a world where all we did was to build houses, plow fields, make clothes to wear and machines in which to ride. We should hate a world that was only a world that we could see."

"I can see a hospital. I know it by its brick and masonry. However, it is not the hospital that I love, but, rather, the unseen sympathy, care and relief—those spirits that move within its walls. We can see a church, but a church is truly in it there moves not the known, but unseen, Spirit of the Living God."

In surveying the Mississippi delta in a seaplane, atmospheric conditions are such that mapping flights can be made only during May and October.

works of genius. A painting, a musical composition, a fine saying, have something in them that attests keen observation, sound judgment and exquisite skill."

There Is Health for the Stammerer

Weekly Health Talk, No. 32
By Drs. Eble & Eble, D.C.

No one knows the nervousness, the embarrassment, the despair that grips the person who suffers the terrible affliction of stammering. It is seldom a trouble for which there is any sympathy, even the song writers considering it a fit subject for comedy. But to the afflicted it is tragedy, for they are shut off from others, limited by crippled and uncontrolled powers of speech.

To the stammerer chiropractic offers hope. The disease is due to lack of coordination, or agreement, between the brain and the organs of speech. The brain order is given but the speech organs can only obey in stumbles and halts.

The specific work of chiropractic in the healing world is to restore the health and freedom of nerve lines to normal speed and health, and stammerers have repeatedly been helped.

BOY IS WELL OF STAMMERING

"My son, Lester, was afflicted with stammering and through chiropractic spinal adjustments was relieved of this terrible affliction. His condition was gradually growing worse when the chiropractor took charge of his case. With but a few adjustments which the chiropractor states is very unusual in such cases, the results noted were marvelous. I can truly recommend chiropractic to any one suffering from this terrible ailment."—Matt Cernosia, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 15618.

Lambert Street, Brazil, Indiana, says:

"It would be hard for me to tell how much good I have received from the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Tonic (nerve) Pills. I was so run down in health I could hardly go. I had no appetite. Could not sleep or rest. I was weak and so very nervous. Beth Jewell Morrish Gets Medal And $10 For Essay On 'Making Highways Safe'

"MY Share in Making the Highways Safe," is a silver medal and $10 for winning second place in California school children's essay contest," said Miss Beth Jewell Morrish, 200 North Louise street, when interviewed by The Glendale Evening News today.

On Saturday she received the medal and check for her 500 words of wisdom, written last year in the Washington Street school, Los Angeles, when she was but 10 years of age. Both Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morrish, her parents, were in Fargo, N. D., at the time and they were greatly surprised and pleased to hear of their daughter's literary achievement on their return west.

Mr. Morrish is an investment broker, and was attracted here by Milton Berry, who is successfully rearing another little daughter or curvatures of the spine. The family is supremely happy in Glendale, according to Mrs. Morrish.

Prize-Winning Essay
Following is the prize-winning essay by Beth, who now attends the Colorado Street school in Glendale, and for which she has won the recognition of the national Highway Education board:

"Most of the streets in California have much traffic and many of the accidents that occur could be avoided if the people were more thoughtful. As a citizen of the United States, it is my duty to help and this is how I can do it.

"I will try to keep other children out of the streets and tell them not to play games there, as it is a very dangerous place for such things.

"I will not cross streets, tracks or alleys without remembering to stop, look and listen.

"When I'm on skates and I come to main streets, I will take them off and not take any chances of being run into by an auto, bicycle or motorcycle; even when, before crossing, I will look to my left to see if it is safe and then, if it is, I will go to the middle of the street, look to my right and be sure that I am safe before I go across. I will not do as Bobby Shatto and Jill did.

Bobby Shatto saw a car. Tried to pass it, got a jar; Spent six weeks more in bed. Other scholars went ahead.

"Jack and Jill climbed up a hill, A car came towards them flying. Jack stopped still, but Jill went on. An hour later Jill is dying.

"On rainy days when I carry an umbrella I will hold it up so I can see what is coming from all sides.

"When I get on or off of a street car I will look to the right and to the left and will always face the front.

"I will never steal rides on any auto or street car or hang onto them when I am on a bicycle, as it is a very dangerous pastime.

When in Traffic
"I will never run across any street, where there is much traffic for I might get my feet caught in the street car track and fall in front of an auto or street car. If I am ever caught in the midst of the traffic, I will not run or jump. I will just stand still until I know what the driver of the auto or car will do. If I run backwards or forwards the driver would not know which way to go, and I would be liable to get into an accident.

"When I want to cross a street, where there is a policeman, I will wait until he turns the way for me to go, or if there is a 'Stop' and 'Go' sign, I will wait until the sign turns to 'Go' before I cross.

"If I see a dangerous hole in the sidewalk, I will cover it up. If everybody obeyed these rules, were thoughtful and did their share in making the highways safe, I am sure there would not be as many accidents as there are now."

A Little Ventura girl won first prize while nine third prize awards were given throughout the state. Similar contests were held in all other states of the union in an educational campaign among the children to make the highways safe.

Women's Chorus Sings At Christian Church

A chorus of about fifty women took part in the services last night at the Central Christian Church. They sang "Sweeter as the Years go by," by Morris, and "In the Garden," by Miles. A quartet composed of Mrs. C. C. Stoler of 1262 Justin avenue; Mrs. Floyd Mercer of 319 North Jackson street; Mrs. R. P. Jodon of 133 South Kenwood street and Mrs. C. S. Weidman of 119 North Kenwood street sang special numbers.

Mrs. Mabel Stoler was the soloist of the morning. The anthem by the choir was "Heaven is my Home" by Haiscom.

MISS MONIOT IS QUEEN OF SHOW

Candidate of Firemen Gets Honors; G. F. Schmoll Wins Maxwell Car

QUEEN CONTEST RESULTS

First, Louise Moniot.....293,452
Second, Corrine Orff.....168,497
Third, Marie Oliver.....163,275
Fourth, Ruth Gitter.....122,451
Fifth, Ruth Golden.....120,588

Miss Louise Moniot, a popular employee of the First National bank in Glendale and a resident of 414 West Los Feliz road, was crowned queen of the Glendale Industrial Exposition at its closing last night. She was awarded the beautiful diamond platinum ring as a result of her efforts.

Miss Moniot's victory is attributed to the work of the Glendale firemen who fought as valiantly for their queen as any crew. It was a victory of love's labor. The victorious candidate was more than delighted with the prized jewel, but Director H. L. Leavitt nearly precipitated a riot when he invited every young man under 21 years of age to kiss the queen. It took a small army of most ardent admirers to prevent the osculatory demonstration.

Mr. Leavitt thanked the crowd—a very small Sunday evening attendance—for the support given the show staged by the Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce. He stated all prizes had been awarded as advertised. Sacred music by the Glendale Elks band and solos by Harry Hahn and Mrs. Thompson completed the program.

Wins Maxwell Car

George F. Schmoll of South San Fernando road held the ticket Saturday night which won the Maxwell touring car. He later stated it was the property of his niece, Corrine Orff, a queen candidate. Two other prizes offered are awaiting claimants.

Good Housekeeping Shops, 140 South Brand boulevard, will give a gas range to the holder of gate coupon 1103, but if not claimed by Wednesday morning $36 will get it. Ralph W. Browne, the photographer, 215 North Brand boulevard, offers a dozen portraits valued at $30 to 2881, which if not taken by Tuesday night will go to 4611.

Man Gets Hope Chest

Just when one of Glendale's bride-to-be would be the recipient of the beautiful hope chest offered by the Women's Auxiliary of the local Legion post, was one of the great interests of the Industrial Exposition. But fate rather reversed things and at the final reckoning the brides-to-be and the brides that were were all ruled out for the winning ticket was held by a man, A. L. Partridge, an employee of the city.

Mr. Partridge, who was greatly pleased over his luck, was very modest about making known his future plans, but rumors state that the chest and its contents will finally be the possession of a bride-to-be.

The luncheon set offered as second prize went to Mariavard Lidston, of 1133 Campbell street, and the towels, the third prize, to Miss Helen Pierce, of 555 Oak street.

The Auxiliary committee in charge of the chest sold $234 worth of tickets for the prizes, and, after expenses are met, almost $200 will be put into the building fund.

Three Die When Auto Strikes Electric Car

WOONSOCKET, R. I., June 4.—Three men were killed early today when an automobile in which they were riding at high speed crashed into an electric car. James Thibault, 25, of Woonsocket, was killed almost instantly. Valire Guernant, 27, and Armand Chatut, 24, also of Woonsocket, suffered internal injuries from which they died. Two other occupants of the car escaped with minor injuries. Chatut drove the automobile.

LONDON, June 4.—Depreciation in exchange caused a panic and resulted in runs on a number of banks, according to a Central News dispatch from Athens today. Funds were advanced to the banks in the emergency by the National Bank of Greece.

A director of the Bank of Commerce was arrested, charged with having made illicit transactions in exchange.

FIRST PRIZE TO ICE CREAM BOOTH

Glendale Company Secures Silver Loving Cup at Exposition

The Glendale Ice Cream Company is the winner of the silver loving cup given by the Standard Oil Company for the best booth at the Glendale Industrial Exposition, which closed last night.

The artistic arrangement of this popular stand was under the direction of Fred Roberts, member of the firm of Roberts & Echols, druggists, who is noted for his accomplishments as a decorator.

First prize ribbons were given the following in the order named by a committee composed of Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson, Mrs. Fred Deal and George J. Lyons who spent Saturday in surveying the entire exposition from the standpoint of Parisian art connoisseurs.

White King Soap Company, Pendroy's Department store, Green Hill Beverage company, New England Furniture Company, Concrete Brick and Tile Company, Army and Navy store and the Low Building company, Pacific Ready-Cut home.

Issues Statement

The committee issued the following statement regarding its work:

"When it was decided to award prizes for the best booths at the exposition, the management endeavored to obtain some brave citizens who had enjoyed full lives and were in readiness to die for a good cause.

"It therefore devolved on this committee to give the exhibits careful study and face the public without flinching, after many hours of careful consideration of the merits of each and every booth.

"We trust our decision will meet with approval of the exhibitors as well as visitors at the Glendale Industrial Exposition."

Alleged Embezzler Held for L. A. Police

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 4.—John S. Fremont is being held here today at the request of the Los Angeles police on a charge of embezzling $35,000 in that city. According to detectives, Fremont admitted he is the man wanted. He is said to have secured the money through real estate deals. The arrest was made on a description furnished by the Los Angeles police.

Seven Firms Bid for Oil Reserve Leases

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Seven bids have been received by Secretary of the Interior Work for lease of three sections of oil lands in naval reserve No. 2 located near Taft, California. The highest bid submitted was that of the Union Oil company of Los Angeles, Cal., which ranged from 22 per cent on all oil produced up to 150 barrels per day to 65 per cent on all production above 1,000 barrels per day.

Officers of Early Church Faced Trials

The men's brotherhood of the Presbyterian church, at their meeting in the council room of the city hall yesterday morning, listened to a talk by Rev. Keith L. Brooks of Eagle Rock on the subject of the kind of officers chosen for the early church.

"The high priest and his associates soon became offended at the growing influence of the apostles, and they contrived to throw them into jail on several occasions, and to persecute them in various ways," he remarked. "Those were heroic days! When one reads this bit of history, he is apt to wonder if the church of today is the legitimate descendant of the church described here. They got scars for medals. Today Christian workers are often smeared with flattery, entertained and banqueted. Christianity has become respectable.

"The apostles, being hated by the council and senate for preaching the Gospel, were charged with filling Jerusalem with their doctrine.

"The first contention in the early church was over money matters. It is hard to avoid a murmuring over the handling of the poor funds of the church. Even the apostles did not avoid the charge of favoritism."

Special Music Given By Church Singers

Miss Elizabeth Mottern of 211 North Adams street was the soloist last night at the Presbyterian Church. She sang Brackett's "Eyes that are Weary."

Oscar F. Walton of the Bible Institute played the evening organ recital. The program included "The Temple March" by Kern, "The Offertory in F" by Rockwell and "Twilight Reverie" by Romberg.

Music of the day was in charge of Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts of 114 West Park avenue. Besides herself and Miss Mottern, other members of the church quartet are J. M. Huddy of Pasadena and Robert F. Malle of Los Angeles.

Bandits Secure $300 In Hotel Robbery

LOS ANGELES, June 4.—Three men, one of them believed by their victim to be a former employee, held up the clerk of the Longfellow hotel at Huntington Park and escaped with $300 in cash and checks, according to a report to the sheriff's office.

The hotel clerk, report stated, positively identified one of the bandits as a former employee at the hotel. The man is said to have entered the place, locked the clerk in a closet, and rifled the cash register while the other two bandits waited outside in an automobile. The clerk freed himself by breaking down the closet door.

PLANS FOR BAND BENEFIT FORMED

Preview of Film Will Be Given at Elks Lodge Meeting Tonight

"A regular meeting!" That is the announcement of the regular weekly Elks gathering for tonight at the clubhouse on East Colorado street, but even such a simple statement holds interest for the lodge members.

Some of the lodge meetings are of course more featured than others but every gathering of the organization is of importance to home and visiting Elks.

Exalted Ruler James Appfel will preside over the meeting and plans will be discussed for the athletic benefit for the band on Thursday night, and for the observance of Flag Day the night of June 14.

Following the meeting there will be a preview of one of the films of the western series being directed by Harry McPherson of Glendale and a member of the local lodge.

Hunt Fire Bug After Blaze in Warehouse

LOS ANGELES, June 4.—A search for a firebug, who is believed to have fired Barker Bros. warehouse at Molino and Palmetto streets was made by the police today, who are investigating the cause of the fire which did nearly $100,000 damage.

One man, N. J. Jensen, was killed; two firemen were injured, and four others were hurt in the fire.

Incendiarism was blamed for the fire when it was learned it started in four different places at once.

The officers also investigated the fire which destroyed the J. H. Springer Auto Paint Shop in West Sixteenth street and caused damage estimated at $100,000.

Miracle Community Offers Inspiration To Those Who Motor Up Hill, Down Dale

By GIL A. COWAN

GLENDALE, the miracle community of southern California, offers the ramblers round its outskirts and inspiration as to the future. Indeed, it was a pleasant Sunday afternoon to get out the old car and go gallivanting into Verdugo hills for a few minutes' recreation and what we saw—

It's too bad we can't make everyone in Glendale and California and the United States see what we saw, for words do not provide colors sufficient. So read between the lines of this print from cold type and imagine if you can the spirit of action.

Thousands of cars purring along historic Verdugo road, for instance, gave tens of thousands an opportunity of seeing the great growth and development of suburban city of homes.

In Heart of City

Thousands more cars on more historic San Fernando road were given others the sight of Glendale in its growth in another direction. And right here in the heart of the city one continuous stream of machines passed through from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Hollywood and other points to carry away with them people who have a mind's picture of the fastest growing city in America.

To me, Glendale is like a fairy city fallen under the charm of Aladdin's lamp. It is an analogy of hundreds of times, because of its truth. But seeing is believing and one cannot appreciate the progress being made here without getting out and mixing with the crowds of newcomers who are enthused by something they have never experienced before. For on every side there is development, building, homemaking and happiness.

Wild No Longer

Pausing for a minute to glance at a series of signs along Verdugo road, we read "Rossmoyne, the Happyland," and looking back into the hills covered with orange orchards—a part of the Ross estate—we wonder how it could be otherwise. That happyland only two or three years ago was the lair of nature's wild animals. Why, we remember of writing a story about Joe Pagliuso capturing a mountain cat, single-handed, in an early morning encounter in the Ross ranch chicken yard. And the boys at the ranch used to have possum for breakfast every once in a while, too.

On the east side of Verdugo road there is North Glendale Heights, Glen Oaks, Glendale Crest and a half dozen other places where people are buying and building and making livable those lovely hills, which have become famed in literature. The former city park a ball game and picnic were in progress.

We found several purchasers getting their share of Woodland park, a subdivision in the center of Verdugo Woodlands, while the remaining lots in the Newport subdivision are fast being cleared. The Glendale Plant & Floral company's gardens in the Woodlands are worth a whole afternoon to the nature lover.

Busy Montrose

Then on up the hill to Sparr Heights we drove, that great project of the Barnum-Walters company, where 1500 acres are being subdivided and landscaped for homes surrounding a civic center and the Oakmont Country club. Busy Montrose is building like Glendale of ten years ago and on every side prosperity simply yells itself hoarse in the hollows of the hills.

To the east of Montrose Mesa Crest, Flintridge, Alta Canyon and other hill homesites gave the writer a thrill that all should enjoy. The rose hedges of the Earl estate, the beautiful drives in Senator Flint's section and then the thousands of little homes out in La Crescenta and Tujunga and Sunland where happiness and contentment hold sway—no wonder we were exhilarated to the point of telling about it.

And more intriguing to the tourist is the little roadside stands. There is a swimming pool and dance pavilion at Tujunga; Monte Vista park at Sunland; another dance resort at Summit Crest, not forgetting the scores of fruit stands and what not.

Food for Hungry

We ran into a new barbecue on Verdugo road near Opechee way where our old friend, Robert Russell, and his good wife, are trying to feed the multitude. They used to cook the Spanish dinners for Verdugo Woodlands. Perhaps, it is but an empty dream to see the countless thousands of easterners who are coming here to be living happily in this garden spot of southern California long after the time Conan Doyle's prophesied catastrophe has passed, but the summer's sun—good for another million years, the scientists say—and the ocean breeze which wafted through the valleys and over the hills seem to tell me in the Creator's own handwriting that nothing shall ever come to pass to break our faith in Glendale and its future! It is too beautiful, too good, too much like the maker would have it to be otherwise. Selah!

TODAY—Los Angeles after accessory thieves.
TOMORROW—Japs like Western music; Kreisler is well received, by Duke N. Parry, Tokio correspondent.

By WILLIAM G. CAYCE
For International News Service

LOS ANGELES, June 4.—Auto-mobile and automobile accessory thieves are doomed in Southern California. Officers in nearly every city in the southland have declared war on this particular variety of bandits. While an automobile thief makes a great haul when he succeeds in taking a machine and selling it, stripping an automobile of various "parts" and tires has been found, it is claimed, to be almost equally as profitable and with much less hazard.

Deputy sheriffs in Southern California have been instructed to launch a concentrated drive against petty thieves who strip machines as they stand beside the road. The officers were told also not to hesitate to shoot if the bandits showed signs of fight. The campaign, Harry Wright, deputy in charge of the theft bureau of the sheriff's forces, says, was decided upon because of the brazen activities of the bandits, who have become so numerous that stringent methods must be taken.

It has been estimated by deputy sheriffs that approximately $1,000,000 worth of accessories are stolen from automobiles annually in Los Angeles alone. It has been pointed out that an accessory thief will strip a machine and then dispose of the parts at a price far below the market price.

One gang of such robbers was interrupted near the Los Angeles river recently. When observed by deputy sheriffs they were busily engaged in stripping a new machine of all the parts they could get loose and dispose of easily. The officers pounced down upon them as they tried to escape and in a gun battle that followed one of the thieves was shot. He was captured, but three others escaped.

"Auto accessory bandits" have become so menacing in Southern California that should an autist experience a serious breakdown while on such highways as the one leading south to San Diego and the one north to Santa Barbara he hardly dares to leave it to go to a nearby town for repairs for fear little will be left of the machine when he returns.

It is a habit of such thieves to lurk along the highways and strip cars which may have been wrecked while the driver has gone for assistance.

It has been charged by the officers that a number of independent oil station operators purchase such stolen articles and dispose of them at a low price, still at a good profit.

Motometers, especially, are easy prey for the thieves. Spare tires which are not locked on are also easy. However, it is claimed that the modern accessory thief goes equipped with large shears and files and in many instances can remove an extra tire, though it may be locked. Stop lights, spot lights and innumerable other parts are easy loot for the accessory thief.

The official report to date this year shows that out of 1,358 automobiles reported stolen, 863 have been recovered.

BILLY WHILAKER

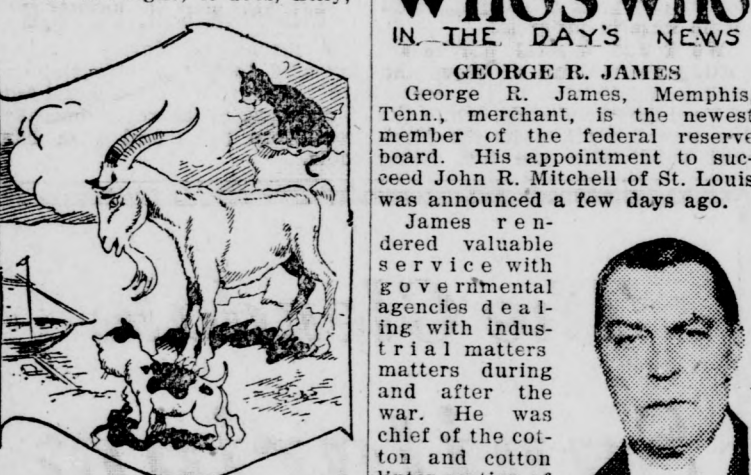

FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

"Billy," exclaimed Button, "your idea fairly makes my head swim! It is such a big undertaking for a goat, dog and cat to do without a help to them."

"Yes," said Stubby, "and have you thought of the rides we will have to steal, the hardships we will have to endure, and the times we will have to go hungry?"

"I have thought of it all," replied Billy. "But what of it? Who cares? Think of the experience and fun we will have. I am tired of poking around in this land of sunshine doing nothing. One gets lazy and old with no hardships to overcome and it gets stale and uninteresting without a little excitement now and then."

"You are right; it does, Billy."

said Button. "And I for one am ready to start out with you whenever you say the word."

"Good for you, Button! You always were a good sport and ready for anything. And Stubby always has been until now."

"And is yet!" barked Stubby. "Where you fellows go, I go alive or dead. When do you want to start?"

"This minute!" said Billy. "Having no trunks to pack or tickets to buy, we can start one time just as well as another."

"Where will we go first?" asked Stubby.

"Look down there," replied Billy. "Do you see that sailing vessel at her dock in the beautiful Golden Gate harbor of San Francisco? Well, I am going to try to get on her and sail when she sails."

The chums were standing on one of the numerous hills on which San Francisco is built when this conversation took place.

SCIENCE and INVENTION

GIANT COOLER

Not in a thousand years would you guess the use of this queer-looking structure.

It is a water cooler, and of special interest to motorists because it has an important relation to the production of gasoline.

Gasoline, of course, is obtained from petroleum by distillation. It passes off in the form of vapor, and, being thereby separated from the heavier part of the oil, must be condensed to convert it into the familiar liquid form.

To effect the condensation cold water is used, and it is to cool water for the purpose that this "trickle tower" is operated.

The structure is like a series of huge rectangular dishes. Water is pumped into the top dish, and presently it overflows into the one next below. This is kept up right along, the overflow from each dish trickling over the sides into the dish beneath it.

This trickle tower is located in Los Angeles.

Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson told this story at a dinner in Washington, according to the Los Angeles Examiner:

"Theodore Roosevelt was out bear hunting in the back woods. He stopped at a backwoodsman's cabin for a snack one day, and while he ate his snack he stared out of the window, so as not to miss any bears that might pass by."

"Suddenly he gave a loud, indignant yell.

"My goodness me," he said to the backwoodsman, "haven't you got any better sense than to let that little child out there play with a loaded gun? Why, it's a terribly dangerous thing."

"Aw, I dunno," the backwoodsman drawled. And then he bit off a chew from a big plug and added: "I got sixteen other chillun."

A cyeing "nut" was riding along when his hat blew off. A passing countryman picked it up and took it to him as he circled around, saving him the trouble of getting off his machine, says Pearson's Weekly.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE THORNBUSH

"I am going with you this morning, Uncle Wiggily," called Nurse Jane. "I suppose you are going to the bush, aren't you?" she asked.

"Oh, wherever you go—adventuring, I suppose," replied Nurse Jane. "I suppose you are going to the bush, aren't you?" she asked.

"To be sure I am," said the bunny, twinkling his pink nose. "Never a day without its adventures—that is my motto. So come along, Nurse Jane."

Out of the hollow stump bungalow hopped Uncle Wiggily and after him followed Nurse Jane. They skipped over the fields and through the woods. It was a pleasant day, the sun was shining, the birds were singing in the trees and Nurse Jane had put the clothes soaking in the washtubs, so she could hang them out on the line when she came back.

"Well, Uncle Wiggily," called the muskrat lady after a while. "I don't see any of your adventures."

"No, they are rather scarce, it appears," answered the bunny, uncle. "But still we may find one just beyond this bush. I'll jump around and look."

Uncle Wiggily jumped around the corner of a bush growing near the path, while Nurse Jane waited to see what would happen. All of a sudden the muskrat lady heard the bunny gentleman shout: "Oh, dear, I'm caught. Oh, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, this is an adventure, all right. Some bad animal was hiding behind the bush and I'm caught. Run! Save yourself!"

But Nurse Jane was brave. She wasn't going to run away and leave poor Uncle Wiggily all alone. So very bravely she jumped around the corner of the bush and there she saw Mr. Longears held fast by his coat tails. It seemed that he was tightly caught by something inside the bush, but Nurse Jane could not see the Fox or Wolf.

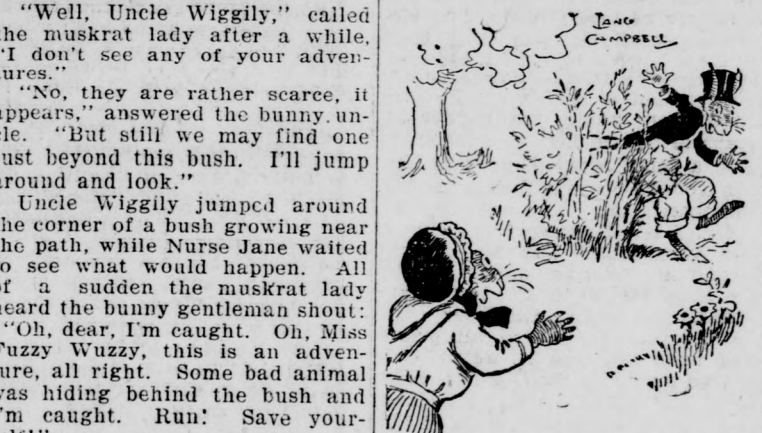

"Oh, Nurse Jane, I'm sure the Skilly Scally Alligator has me," cried Uncle Wiggily.

"Nonsense!" laughed Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy as she looked a second time. "Nothing has caught you. You simply jumped over a thorn bush and some of the long thorns are caught on your coat tail. It's like the time your coat was caught on a nail when you jumped the fence."

"Oh, is that all?" asked Uncle Wiggily, breathing easier.

"That's all," laughed Nurse Jane. Then she carefully pulled the thorns from the bunny's coat tail and set him free. But, no sooner had she done this than the muskrat lady exclaimed: "Oh, my goodness!"

"What is it now?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Is the Bob Cat coming?"

Held fast by his coat tails.

took one of the long, sharp thorns that she had used to pin up Uncle Wiggily's coat, and with the thorn the muskrat lady jabbed and stuck the Wolf in his soft and tender ribs.

"Here, What are you doing?" howled the Wolf in surprise.

"Oh, I'm just sort of having fun with you—playing a new game," laughed Nurse Jane, and she jabbed the Wolf once more with the thorn.

"Wuchie! Ouchie! I don't like that game!" howled the Wolf. "I don't like it at all!" And then, before Nurse Jane could jab him once more, away he ran.

"Well, that was a fine adventure, and I didn't have my ears nibbled after all!" laughed the bunny gentleman as he and Nurse Jane hopped to the hollow stump bungalow.

And if Little Jack Horner doesn't stand the pussy cat in the corner on her head so she can't play tag with her tail, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the stamps.

AS USUAL Shakespeare has taken a tumble. New York don't want him no more.

PROGRESS OF THE DANCING CHAMPIONSHIP

Miss Minerva Higgins of Spruce Falls, Idaho, held the dancing championship for almost a whole day last week. She danced sixty-two hours without stopping and wore out seven pairs of shoes and nine dancing partners.

Miss Lucetta Bilkins of Oil City, Pa., claimed the championship immediately, for, although she did not dance any longer than did Miss Higgins, she wore out nine pairs of shoes and twelve dancing partners.

This held the championship record until 3 o'clock the following morning, when the important news was flashed over the wires that Miss Dancy Tibbits of Chicago had beaten all records by dancing seventy-two hours, wearing out fourteen pairs of pumps and seventeen partners.

At 4 o'clock that afternoon it was officially announced that Miss Lucy Purdy of Wheeling, W. Va., had just worn out her nineteenth partner and her sixteenth pair of shoes. She finished dancing on the seventy-fourth hour and was declared the champion hooper of the universe.

She held this championship until 2 o'clock that afternoon, when it was claimed that Miss Chlorine Stabbs of Okaloosa, Iowa, had danced eighty-one hours and had two shoe dealers and their entire stocks present in the hall.

Inasmuch as the championship changed hands twenty-seven times in one week, it is now looked upon as one of the important American sports. At any rate it seems to be important to the shoe manufacturers.

The Fate of Silas Homer

TODAY'S SHORT STORY,
BY Ad Schuster

All his life Silas Homer had been timid. There were those who said it was only his bashfulness which kept him single. Every day he made his quiet way to his office, where Miss Prindle placed his mail, the envelopes neatly slit, in the basket to the left of his desk. Miss Prindle was ready, again, to take dictation and answer the letters. She kept the books and answered the telephone. Today Silas was more than timid. He was frightened, overcome by a terrifying piece of news. Two hours ago he had entered Doc Foster's office, feeling a trifle under the weather. For months something had been wrong. Well, Doc told him what. Perhaps he would live six months. "I'm as good as gone right now," said Silas, "and me with no relatives nor dependents. Maybe it's lucky I never got married."

In the days that followed Silas thought it all out. He would leave his money to Miss Prindle. She had worked for him faithfully, had run the office, and was the only woman of whom he was not afraid. It was funny, Silas thought, but this death sentence made him look upon his office assistant in a new light. As he thought of leaving the earth the idea persisted that the parting with Miss Prindle would be the most difficult part.

"I can't very well say, 'Well, good-bye, Miss Prindle, I'm going off to die,'" Silas said to himself. "I can't break this thing suddenly. I'll have to be diplomatic and tactful." Then he wondered how the woman would take his news. More than likely she would feel sorry, he told himself. Of course she would. Why else had she worked so long for him, when she could have held better positions? Silas thought back on many incidents and groaned. It came to him suddenly that Miss Prindle would have married him long ago and that she was the woman he wanted for a wife.

"The trouble is," said Silas, "I have taken her for granted. Like the typewriter desk or the weather. There would be no romance now, just a solemn scene during which he would tell the girl as gently as possible his plans for the future, and explain why she was to receive his money."

"Miss Prindle," said Silas, turning in his chair, "you may put down your pencil. I have something very serious to say and for you alone."

The stenographer's eyes grew round. This remark was without precedent. "You have worked for me for seven years. You have learned all my little ways, my faults and—I have any—my virtues." "Indeed, Mr. Homer—" "Just a minute, let me finish. I say you know my virtues. You have, in fact, managed my business and always you have been very faithful." This was going to be difficult. Silas took a deep breath and started in again. "There is something I have wished to say to you, something which has been on my mind. Only recently I have realized—" "Oh, Mr. Homer," Silas' breathless happy young woman. "I have waited so long for this. You dear man, I know the day on which you started to love me." And Miss Prindle slid swiftly into the lap of the timid Mr. Homer. Joy, grief, fear and ecstasy crowded for place in the mind of Silas Homer. When he could forget Doc Foster's sentence he was ready to sing. He had not lived in vain, for, Silas Homer, had won the heart of this wonderful woman.

"If I had not been trying to tell her something else," he bemoaned, "I never could have proposed. Now I will have to break this other news—just when she is so happy."

Silas gave himself one more chance. Doc Foster, he decided, was an old fogey. Why, half his practice was on dogs. Luckily he had mixed up his symptoms. Silas went to the large city to interview a specialist, and, as he sat in the waiting room, trembled again as a man about to hear his doom.

The specialist was more thorough than Doc Foster. Silas could see that. He attacked the patient with all manner of instruments and with his fists, thumping and pounding, and all the time he frowned.

"Well," said Silas in a weak little voice, "tell me the worst. I am prepared."

"The trouble with you," the specialist said, "is you have been spending your life eating in cheap restaurants and have eaten nothing but that which you like best. If you could get an intelligent cook, or a wife, you would forget your troubles in a month."

"I think," said Silas, as the world spread before him again, "I can attend to that matter."

Paris has been exalting the tier in a number of her newest frocks. This design, in dark blue flat crepe, gains further elegance by the addition of a rolled girdle of blue satin and gold braid. It is finished with a rosette of gold cloth stitched with dark blue silk. The dress is divided into a slip-on blouse with oval neck and scalloped kimono sleeves and a skirt with two tiers. Withal the frock is extremely simple. Medium size requires 4½ yards 36-inch material.

THE GALVY PRINTED JACQUETTE
The favorite companion of the plaited skirt is the jacquette blouse, and it lends its exquisite tones to the darker colors of the flannels, knit silks, etc., employed in the development of separate skirts. The fronts of this jaunty model are rolled with the comfortable collar and, of course, there is a sash at the side to emphasize the point of adjustment. Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY NOT BE MODERATE?

"Every one of his opinions appears to himself to be written with sunbeams."—Watts.

A friend of mine who has recently been abroad says that one of the things she liked about Englishmen was that they were much less positive in their way of talking than Americans.

When they stated an opinion, they generally ended their remarks with "Isn't it?" or "I think" or "Don't you think so?" she declared.

Whether that is typically English or whether she happened to meet some individual whose manner she accepted as a national characteristic—a thing we are all apt to do—I don't know.

Sure to Please
But this I do know. That the habit of thus qualifying one's statements is a very gracious habit.

And a habit that anyone who wanted to be liked could easily acquire to recommend himself by.

It isn't much bother to add a word or two of gracious interrogation at the end of a statement.

It doesn't cost anything to say "I have heard" or "I have read" or "I have it on good authority" that such and such a thing is so.

Instead of saying emphatically "Such a thing is so" in a manner that dares anyone to disagree with you.

And it recommends both you and your opinions to express yourself in this more gracious manner. Listen to two people arguing.

With Which is Your Sympathy?
One is all emphasis and positiveness. He raises his voice. He makes all his statements with the manner of a judge from whose court there is no appeal and who will fine you for contempt of court if you disagree with him. And you knew very well that's just what he would like to do. When ever he appears to be losing his argument, he raises his voice and makes his statements more emphatic. One of his favorite stunts is to say very emphatically, "I'll wager so and so," about something that cannot very well be proved one way or the other.

The other one speaks with moderation both in tone and manner and statement.

With which is your sympathy? Which do you enjoy seeing proved wrong?

It Keeps Bad Company
"Positiveness," says Sterne, "is a most absurd folly. If you are in the right it lessens your triumph; if you are in the wrong, it adds shame to your defeat."

I fancy he must have listened to such an argument.

If you are wrong you cannot afford to be positive—if you are right you don't need to be.

Having a mind to use a synonym for "positive," I looked it up in my thesaurus. And here are some of the words which I found allied to it—narrowminded, obstinate, dogmatic, bigoted, intolerant, arbitrary. If a word like a man, is known by the company it keeps, surely that is a better indictment of "positiveness" a better warning not to have anything to do with it lest you find yourself associating with its associates, than any I could give.

BEAUTY CHATS

ABUSING THE ELBOWS

Few people take care of their elbows properly. The average woman, seeking to improve her appearance, considers her work done when she has treated her face with cream and astringent, her hair with tonic, and her fingernails with manicure preparations. She will then go about cheerfully in the shortest of sleeves, with elbows that quite ruin her looks.

Now there are two ways of treating her elbows to improve them. One way gives a temporary niceness to them, the other way permanently better them. If you change into a short sleeved or sleeveless frock and suddenly find that the elbows look badly, first scrub them with a stiff little brush and soap and hot water, then rub them with vanishing cream or honey-almond lotion until the skin takes up quite a bit, then wipe off and powder.

But be sure that you do not wear anything dark against the elbows after this treatment, as, for instance, a black coat over an evening gown, for the elbows will absorb dust or color all the more readily after the treatment, because of the oil rubbed into them. If they are quite dark and dry looking, you may have to rub them with cleansing cream before washing them, and scrub them the harder to remove this and the dirt.

So much for the temporary treatment! For permanent improvement, scrub the elbows nightly as directed, then rub into them thoroughly either olive oil or flesh-building cream or warm cocoa butter. Twice a week, if the skin seems loose and baggy, rub them with any good astringent—wet starch paste or the white of an egg will do, or even toilet water. If you have the time to spare, sitting for ten minutes with the elbows in a saucer of warm olive oil is a marvelous means of improving them. If they have been scrubbed first, they take up much of the nourishing oil.

Oily Face.—For oiliness of the skin try wiping it off occasionally with a small piece of absorbent cotton. Dampen the cotton with either water or some of the simple astringent such as a toilet vinegar or water to which a few drops of benzoin have been added.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

Up to the time of the vitamin investigations it had been thought that if the protein, carbohydrates, fats and mineral salts were in right proportions in the diet, and there were enough calories of them, then, nutrition would be theoretically correct.

We had known that we must have some fresh foods to prevent scurvy and that we must not live on a diet of polished rice or we would get the terrible nerve disease, beri-beri, but we had not discovered these things their proper significance. We had not tried to discover why certain foods were incomplete and would apparently cause disease, or what were the properties of other foods which made them of sufficient value to cure these diseases.

Now we know that there are other food factors besides protein, carbohydrates, fats and mineral salts, and other values to food aside from the energy or caloric values, protein and mineral salt values. But this does not mean in the least that we have discarded our knowledge that we had before. Not at all! These food factors have simply moved over a little and have made room for the vitamins. It may be that further investigations will disclose some other food factors, and then the vitamins will have to edge over a little to make room for them.

Occasionally you hear it said that, now that the vitamins have been discovered, calories have been discarded. But this is not true. To discard our knowledge of calories, for instance, because we have discovered the vitamins would be similar to discarding a vital part of our automobile when we discovered the car was not running right and found it necessary to add another part to make it go. That would be foolish, wouldn't it?

As I told you last week, in the last fifteen years we have learned more about scientific nutrition than we did in a hundred years previous. The chief reason is because we have used the biological method of studying more. The biological method means the study of the effects of food on animals and man. The chemical laboratories have taught us a good deal, but they have had their marked limitation.

It is a most interesting experience to visit a biological nutrition laboratory. The animals are usually caged and are given the most tender and zealous care. Accurate records are kept of the amount and kinds of food given them and of every reaction that is brought about by these foods. The animals' activities and dispositions—in fact, everything they do—is recorded as carefully as a hospital patient's would be.

The research workers and the attendants become very fond of these animals and have their individual favorites, and they often give them pet names. In the Forsythe Dental Clinic in Boston, for instance, two beautiful little monkeys, being fed to demonstrate the value of certain diets on teeth, were called Mary and Doug!

When I was there Doug had begun to develop pyorrhea and tooth decay on a diet that was deficient in green stuffs and milk. His usual cheerfulness and friskiness were absent, and he was altogether in the dumps. Mary, who was receiving the same diet as Doug, with the addition of milk and greens, was her usual vivacious self, eyes bright and starchy, teeth shiny white and perfect. Dr. Howe's experiments at this laboratory have shown the effects of a deficient diet on the teeth and jaw bones, not only on Doug, but upon numerous anonymous guinea pigs.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: How would you advise me to get skinny? I would like to lose about ten or fifteen pounds. I would like some way that does not injure the health.

FATTY.
The surest and safest way for you to lose weight is to get a book on diet which gives a key to the calories. In this way you can eat everything, but with your knowledge of calories you can control the amount you eat at each meal. It is not at all difficult to learn enough about calories to lose a pound or two a week and after you have reached the desired desired weight stay there.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a pupil in high school. I have been on the honor roll nearly every quarter. I have always liked my teachers and they have liked me, but this semester I have a teacher who acts very indifferently toward me. She says no attention to me. When I ask her about my work she answers me very flatly and tells me to do the best I can. She does not treat the other girls so and is willing to help them whenever they ask. I have done her wrong and am always polite. She never asks me to recite in class although I raise my hand. I cannot afford nice clothes as some of the girls can. Can this be the reason for her treating me as she does? I know I would like her very much if she treated me better. What can I do?

A. S. W.
You are not the first little girl to be misunderstood by her teacher. I can understand exactly your position, the harder you try to please the more you seem to turn. Please. But if you were to turn arrogant and indifferent, you would be in greater disfavor than you are now.

Your case needs investigation by your father or mother. The best way would be to entertain your teacher for dinner. After dinner your parents might go into the living room with the teacher while you clear the table, giving them a chance to be alone. At that time your problem could be talked over and the teacher might feel a new interest in you and gain a different point of view. If your mother does not want to entertain your teacher for dinner either she or your father ought to call at the school and talk the matter over.

THANK YOU.
Since you love the girl so much, wait until she is old enough to marry you. While you are waiting you can work hard and save so that at the end of two years you will be able to take care of a wife.

Both you and the girl will have to be very careful not to anger her uncle. Naturally you object to having her whipped. The only thing for you to do is to be silent about your love for each other so that people will not talk about it and carry the matter to her uncle. Content yourselves with meeting at church, even if you see very little of each other. Two years seems a long time, but if you love each other deeply you can wait and at the end of that time each of you will be better ready to marry.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

BY EDITH MORIARTY

Dr. Esther Lovejoy, woman physician who was personally decorated by the king of Greece a short time ago with the first Greek war cross ever awarded a third class. I could travel just as fast to America as the people who paid $300 or more I could not resist the temptation to get such a bargain," she said. "Besides, I thought I might start a fashion for relief workers. I'm hoping to see soon that all the relief workers between here and Europe will travel steerage. If they do it will mean the saving of many, many lives."

Dr. Lovejoy declared she had enjoyed every minute of her trip and had found the third-class accommodations far superior to some of the vessels she traveled on in Greece waters.

Dr. Lovejoy is a native of Seattle, Oregon and a graduate of the university of that state. She saw service in France under the Red Cross during the world war. She was in charge of the relief work in Smyrna after the fire last fall, and is president of the American Women's hospitals.

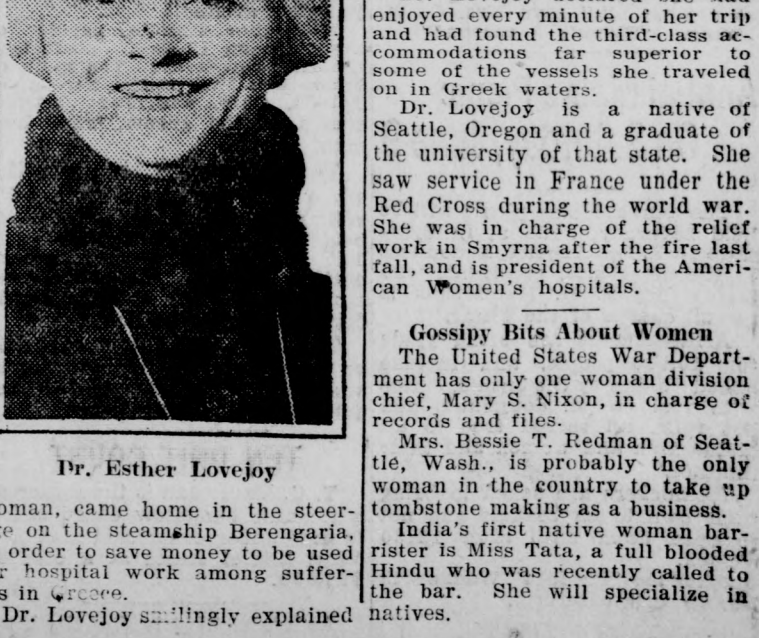

Gossipy Bits About Women
The United States War Department has only one woman division chief, Mary S. Nixon, in charge of records and files.

Mrs. Bessie T. Redman of Seattle, Wash., is probably the only woman in the country to take up tombstone making as a business.

India's first native woman barrister is Miss Tata, a full blooded Hindu who was recently called to the bar. She will specialize in natives.

Dr. Esther Lovejoy
woman, came home in the steerage on the steamship Berengaria, in order to save money to be used for hospital work among sufferers in Greece.

EAGLE ROCK

VOTERS TO PASS
ON BOND ISSUES

Choice of Site for Civic Center Comes Up In Election

With municipal election day coming tomorrow, June 5, some 2000 Eagle Rock voters will have the privilege of registering at the polls their opinions on the numerous important measures up for decision.

Among these questions is the one of the proposed municipal center. Voters will be asked to register whether or not this center should be located in the district bounded on the north by First street, on the south by Sunset boulevard, on the east by Broadway and on the west by Los Angeles street. The Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce has endorsed this site.

Voters will be asked to pass on the proposal for a $2,500,000 bond issue for the purchase of a block of land for a new city hall site, and are asked to pass on the proposal for a $5,000,000 bond issue to supply funds for erecting a building large enough to house all the present and future departments of the municipal government.

Pay Big Rent

In this connection it is pointed out that the city is now paying annually over $90,000 rent for offices outside the present city hall, and will soon be paying more, unless steps are taken to obtain larger quarters. The present city hall, moreover, is claimed to be unsafe, ugly and entirely unfit to house the departments of government of a city of which its residents have reason to be justly proud.

Voters at the election of June 5 will also be asked to pass on a list of candidates for the board of education. The following seven candidates are endorsed by the Citizens' School Committee, who stand for efficient administration of the public schools, co-operation and harmony between teachers and administration of the business affairs of the schools, and the elimination of politics within the school system.

The list of candidates endorsed by the committee follows: John B. Beman, Frank O. Bristol, Robert L. Burns, Elizabeth Louise Clark, Frederick R. Feitshans, Lucia Macbeth and Robert A. Odell.

New C. of C. Officers

E. J. Root was unanimously elected president of the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce, his own dissenting vote being the only one registered. J. Hartley Taylor was elected first vice-president, Godfrey Edwards second vice-president, H. H. Maxon third vice-president and Fred Biles treasurer.

Upon hearing the report of the committee appointed to examine into the qualifications of the various applicants for the position of secretary, the board interviewed two candidates and finally selected Donnell Montgomery. Mr. Montgomery is the son of Dr. and Mrs. S. T. Montgomery, of Adelia and Hill avenues. He attended Occidental college and Stanford university, his special studies at the latter institution admirably qualifying him for public work.

Mr. Montgomery has been appointed Eagle Rock's representative on the Los Angeles City Planning Commission.

Eagle Rock's Budget

When Eagle Rock City ceased to operate as such and became a part of the city of Los Angeles, the latter metropolis absorbed funds in the local treasury to the extent of $30,856.60, according to report made by W. J. Cook, city treasurer.

The books were turned in on May 18, but the funds have not yet been officially turned over to the big city. The balances in the various departments are as follows:

General fund	$ 5,973.36
Library fund	1,333.80
Water works operation fund	11,912.04
Water works bonds (1916) interest and sinking fund	1,450.00
Street improvement bonds (1916) interest and sinking fund	737.30
Central avenue bonds, interest and sinking fund	570.00
City hall bonds, interest and sinking fund	1,807.39
Street improvement (1919) fund	576.88
Street lighting fund	2,400.00
City hall fund	650.91
Total	$30,856.60

Annual Maine Picnic
On Saturday, June 9

The annual Maine picnic will be held Saturday, June 9, in Sycamore park, Los Angeles, announces J. Harvey White, president, who states that E. H. Hutchinson is in full charge of the affair.

Arrangements are being made for 10,000 people, and include baked beans by the bushel, coffee with real cream, doughnuts and hot rolls, all served free to all Maine men and women and their families.

Picknickers are asked to bring their own lunch baskets and not to open them until after 12:30 o'clock.

BURBANK

URGE EXTENSION OF CAR SERVICE

Growth of City Calls for Greater Facilities in Transportation

West San Fernando boulevard is beginning to boom. A big crew of road engineers are showing in the new road from the railroad to the city limits at the rate of close to 1000 feet per day, the china factory is going full blast, turning out product valued at in excess of $50,000 per month, the busses are charging ten cents each way, for rides between this section and the business center of the city, and residents are beginning to agitate vociferously for an extension of the Pacific Electric lines to this growing vicinity.

These latter claim that the Pacific Electric would benefit and that the rate of increase warrants the extension. Regarding the ten-cent bus fare, they feel that this is too much by just half and that a ten-cent round trip would be more equitable.

New Brick Garage
The new brick garage in this section, being erected by the Edwards & Wilkey company, is moving rapidly to completion. The walls are up and the roof will soon be on.

Lumber for the new William J. Bettingen Lumber company is being brought to the premises and it is expected that the buildings for this company will soon start rising.

All this development brings residents to the section—and the residents bring the transportation problem.

Something must be done, people feel. And something unquestionably will be done, after a lot of talking has been indulged in. 'Twas ever thus, they say.

Autoists Affected

In closing the west section of San Fernando boulevard for about a mile, while putting in the new road from the china factory, the contractors came very near to causing a riot, by neglecting to arrange a detour. Myriad motorists began swarming in, only to find themselves trapped. In this predicament they became considerably nettled and held solemn convalescence with the Powers who are—with the result that a speedy round-table conference was held, between the gravel men, the county road department and the Chamber of Commerce.

The program adopted provides for diverting all through traffic on Magnolia avenue, to the west of Lankershim and then out by way of Lankershim boulevard. Coming the other way, the junction of San Fernando boulevard with Lankershim boulevard would be used as the detour point.

Provisions were made to accommodate local traffic by a temporary roadway beside the new highway, with watchmen stationed at either end of the section to handle the traffic.

Again Leads P.-T. A.

So successful has Mrs. E. H. Harding proved as head of the Parent-Teacher association that she has again been elected president and will resume her duties in working for co-operation and understanding between the home and the school.

Other officers re-elected were: Miss Farrar, treasurer; Mrs. George Fainot, historian; while Mrs. Golda Ellis is the new vice-president; Mrs. E. W. Morgan the new secretary and Mrs. Leona Foster the new auditor. Superintendent Collins is parliamentary.

Performed by Priest of Tujunga Chapel

The wedding of Miss Aldine Norton, daughter of Mrs. H. H. Goddard of La Canada, and Harold Fulenwider of Denver, was solemnized last Tuesday, May 29, at noon at the Goddard home on Fairview avenue.

Monsignor Tonello, pastor of the Tujunga Chapel, performed the ring ceremony. The maid of honor was Miss Helen Berson, of Toledo, Ohio, and Ted Martin, cousin of the groom, was best man.

The bride wore a beautiful white batiste gown with a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white bride's roses and orange blossoms. The maid of honor was dressed entirely in pink. After the ceremony an elaborate wedding breakfast was served outdoors.

The bride and groom have left on a honeymoon trip to Denver and will return later to Los Angeles to make their home.

RUSHING WORK ON TUJUNGA STREETS

County Official Estimates Job Will Be Finished in Four Weeks

The improvement work being done on Tujunga streets by the county will take about four weeks yet, it is estimated by Foreman Kurst, who is in charge of the work.

Pine street is being worked between Michigan avenue and Los Angeles street and will be oiled and graveled. Work promised for the fiscal year will be finished. This includes the work on Olive and Haines Canyon road. Oil and gravel will be applied as soon as the grading is completed.

After completing the work here the road crew will go to work on the section of Pennsylvania avenue between Michigan and Honolulu avenue, La Crescenta.

A plan has been outlined by Attorney Folsom for the Verdugo Hills Transportation company whereby a separate corporation would purchase the busses and lease them to the operating company. The plan has been presented to the directors of the transportation company for their approval.

Ball Games at Park

The ball grounds were much in demand and several games were played during the day. This is one of the finest natural parks in the country and in pleasant weather it is the favorite picnicking grounds of motorists from far and near. Many annual outings are held at this park during the summer months, some of which are planned several weeks in advance. One of these, to be held the first Sunday in July, is the Amigos club of Los Angeles, an organization of Union Oil employees attached to the Sales Department and Yard office of the Los Angeles Sales Branch on Mateo street. Monte Vista park has been the scene of all this club's outings for the last two years, one of the reasons being the adjoining ball grounds. On Sunday, July 1, they have made plans for a game with the Sunland club of the Southern California Baseball Managers' association.
